To whom it may concern:

Mark Smolen was an excellent student in the MA program in Data Analytics and Applied Social Research at Queens College, CUNY. He performed extremely well in several challenging classes of the program and for this reason, he was invited to be the official tutor for our course in Advanced Data Analytics, in the spring of 2017. Several students expressed appreciation for his help and mentioned how his advisement was instrumental for their successful completion of this demanding course. He also went "above and beyond" the requirements of his position and made some very helpful instructional videos in the Stata software that was used in the course.

Now that he has graduated, I would highly recommend him as an adjunct professor for any topic that he is qualified to teach.

Sincerely,

Sophia Catsambis, Ph.D.
